

Have you always dreamt of capturing some stunning video footage from above? Unfortunately, deciding on and purchasing a drone is only the first step. And when it finally arrives at your doorstep, it's not as simple as opening it and flying it.

It turns out, drones aren't toys and there is actually quite a bit of regulation these days.

There are 3 essential things you must do before you can (legally) fly your drone for the first time:

- 1 If your drone weighs more than .55 lbs, register your drone with the FAA.
- 2 Label your drone.
Order Free Drone Labels
- 3 Get your TRUST Certificate from Pilot Institute.

For a more in-depth review, we have created a YouTube video of our first experience purchasing, registering, and flying a drone: 3 Things You MUST Do Before You Fly Your Drone